05 You'll receive the Get Certified badge (again) to confirm your spot on the waitlist for Edition 1.

Who is eligible to participate in the Get Certified Program?

The Get Certified program has a thorough application review process and is intended for practitioners affiliated with current and prospective Google Cloud customers. All applicants begin on a waitlist and are considered for admission by the Get Certified team. To start the process and receive the most relevant updates and information about the program, please provide your company name and email address.

Why do I need to share two email addresses when joining the waitlist?

When you register to join the waitlist for Get Certified, you'll be asked to provide both a personal and organization email address. This is because during registration you will also be creating a Google Developer Profile and joining the Innovators cloud technologist community, if you haven't already.

This profile and community are designed to take with you as you progress through your career, even as you change organizations. Your current organization (e.g. work or school) email may help prioritize you on the waitlist, depending on your organization's relationship with Google Cloud, and will be where you receive communications specifically for the Get Certified program.

How do I drop off the Get Certified waitlist?

To remove yourself from the waitlist, please remove the Innovators Get Certified badge from your Developer Profile by following the instructions on the previous page.

When will I hear back about my registration for the program?

The Get Certified program has limited seats. We review applications on a first-come, first-served basis and will update you on your status as soon as possible. Expect a response no later than 10 business days prior to the start of an Edition.
