Section 1

Excite

Make sure everyone understands what's changing and why they should be part of it. Create your transition plan.

Your school community

Staff

Education leaders, including administrators, curriculum leaders, superintendents, and other staff, benefit from having secure devices to support their school communities.

Educators

Educators benefit from cloud-based devices that let them provide instruction, give feedback and guidance, and conduct classes from anywhere.

Students

Learners benefit from working from the same operating system as the rest of their school community, making collaboration with peers and educators easy.

Your switching strategy

Chosen change

Are users allowed to choose their devices?

This option can suit educators and education leaders.

Example: Choose Your Own Device (CYOD) Program

Key tip

Ensure educators and education leaders are onboarded and trained correctly.

Imposed change

Are users required to use Chromebooks?

This approach can suit students.

Example: Customizing Chromebooks K-12

Key tip

Ensure students are taught about the benefits and features of Chromebooks. Once educators are onboarded, encourage them to train and monitor their classes to help students get the most of out of their Chromebooks.

Generate awareness

Posters

Stick up these posters around your school to help create buzz around Chromebooks.

Flyer

Use this one-page flyer to communicate the key benefits of Chromebooks. You can hand it out at staff meetings or email it as a PDF – it's up to you.

Email

Build awareness by sending an email to educators and staff about Chromebooks, customized with your school's logo and CTA.

Section 2
