When life hands out lemons, Indians no longer just search for ways to make lemonade. Having weathered three years of disruptive changes, they’re seeking to live life on their own terms and looking to be in control of their identities, lifestyles, and what they value.

We’ve noticed this shift as we analyze billions of searches every year to help marketers uncover meaningful audience insights.
Across India, searches in 2022 point to how people are standing their ground amid sustained waves of uncertainty. With open minds, quick thinking, and digital savvy, they’re seeking out authentic, fulfilling ways of living, working, and being that suit them, and not simply going with what life serves up.

We’ve identified three key insights about Indians based on what’s top of mind for them as they search. In this report, we dive into the insights, what they mean for your brand, and how you can strengthen your marketing strategy for the year ahead.
THEME 1

Soul searching
After three years of uncertainty, Indians are moving past merely coping or going with the flow. They’re reenvisioning who they can be, on their own terms. When border restrictions limit people to their backyards, they’re taking the opportunity to dig deep into local traditions while also connecting with global cultures from home.
People are also looking to be their most full and authentic selves. Following on the heels of the Great Resignation, the Great Exhaustion is sweeping across the world, prompting people to focus more on their well-being, and upskilling themselves to land better opportunities. They’re embracing their individuality and searching with more specificity to satisfy their distinct needs and preferences.
1.1 Cultural Identity
Shamita and Jayprakash found inspiration globally and acted locally. The two embraced the global trend for health conscious eating and delivered it to Indian families. When the couple saw a need to help families prepare healthy dishes, especially for the elderly and bachelors, they started a catering service and food brand, called Fathers Food, that brings authentic home-cooked meals with local spices to Indian families.
Globally connected, locally focused.

We’re seeing a paradoxical dissonance in people’s searches: They desire to be plugged into global culture, but they’re also celebrating what makes India’s traditions unique.

This dynamic duality points to the increasing complexity of their identities as global citizens and proud denizens.

1.2 Personal Identity
Shibangi is searching for a little chill. The busy advertising writer has traded in her urban life in Mumbai for the more relaxed living in Goa. Meditation, workouts, and yoga are also helping the passionate professional to unwind, while she’s staying up to date on the latest in her industry with online courses.
Refined searches.

People are searching with greater specificity as they become more aware of their distinctive identities. Whether it’s looking for “perfume for women” (as compared with just “perfume”) or “heart shape face hairstyle male” (as compared with simply “male hairstyle”), people’s searches reflect their evolving sense of self.

People in India were also looking for better work opportunities, as queries for career change increased by 20%.
Marketing implications
Adopt inclusive marketing strategies as a mindset, not a checkbox.

Commit to diversity, equity, and inclusion as a constant responsibility, and embed them into every aspect of your brand campaigns, from conception to execution and beyond. For marketing to feel truly inclusive and accessible, brands must understand and regard people holistically, across the full spectrum of what makes up their identity, including gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, and more.
MARKETING IMPLICATIONS 01

One way to do this is through nuanced narratives that reflect intersectionality in your messages. Brands that portray women and underrepresented groups positively have greater influence on customer intent.

TATA AIA Life Insurance actively reached out to women as it built awareness of its brand, even though this audience segment is not typically prioritized in the industry. It is commonly assumed that women are not decision-makers when it comes to insurance products.
TATA AIA Life Insurance used first-party data to find relevant audiences on YouTube. Its campaign led to a 28% increase in website sessions, 36% increase in organic searches for the brand, and a 9.2% increase in Relative Awareness Lift.
Think visually beyond text search.

Recent innovations in Search are helping consumers find what they’re looking for in more natural and intuitive ways. As people increasingly search with images and text together, think about investing in compelling image assets to bring your ads to life with diverse representation of people and products.
Image Extensions on Search helped upGrad, an online education platform in India, drive 22% higher click-through rate, and 47% higher conversion rate at 19% lower cost per acquisition. A healthy mix of images of their brand ambassador along with other high-definition images helped the brand stand out.
Value hunting
In times of inflation, people reassessed the cost of things. They not only looked at the sticker price but also what they consider to be of value. Additionally, people are discovering that wallet-friendly options like second-hand clothing don’t just save money; they can also help to save the environment.

Trust in a brand plays a significant part in people’s calculations. They’re searching for clear indications of whether a brand provides quality service and reliable products. And they’re looking for the one that offers the best deal overall too rather than the cheapest price.
2.1

Seeking Value and Knowledge
SEEKING VALUE AND KNOWLEDGE

Reagan and Natalia
India

Value is top of the list for Reagan when he makes a purchase decision. The landscape designer and farming consultant doesn’t just want good deals, he wants deals that are good for the environment too; whether that’s using ride shares, researching ways to live a more sustainable life or looking for the best deals with his partner Natalia.
People are more carefully weighing their buying options.

As costs rise, people are carefully considering how and when they spend, seizing the right moment for the best deals overall, as evident in the increased search interest for both best restaurants and cheap restaurants. Globally, search interest in compared to remains consistently high, and in India, 45% of premium buyers and 43% of non-premium buyers decided to put additional money into savings.

Search interest in best restaurant grew by +40%
Search interest in cheap flights jumped by more than 60%, and cheap restaurants rose by over 50%.
Seeking greater economic literacy.

As the global economy remains uncertain, people are looking for information to increase their financial and economic literacy. They’re learning about everything, from the causes of rising prices and inflation to emerging investment trends, to make decisions that count.

Searches for “inflation rate” increased by 50%.
Search interest in fuel price rise was also up by +150%
2.2 Saving Money and the Planet
Inflation and sustainability are going hand-in-hand in forming an unexpected alliance. People are discovering that purchases which support sustainability can help them be savvier about their spending, with search interest in organic products more than doubling in India as compared to pre-pandemic levels.⁶

As Indians grew more environmentally conscious, there was a 140% growth in search interest in affordable and clean energy.

Similarly, there was a 20% increase in search interest in things that can be recycled.

Your brand can use AI-driven ads on Search to immediately deliver the best deals to people as they search for affordable – and trusted – options. Adopt a “tried-and-new” approach that blends traditional Search best practices with Google’s AI-powered products. For example, combining value-based bidding with broad match keywords can help your brand show up in new, high-performing queries.

Samsung India adopted value-based bidding for its Search campaigns to grow its D2C e-commerce revenue in the pre-festive period. It was able to optimize for online (web and app) conversion events, and reach customers that helped them maximize their profits. This led to 5x revenue growth, and about a 20% increase in average order value.
Be transparent in your sustainable efforts.

Today, environmental issues have become a pressing issue among people in India. Consumers are taking note of this more than ever before, prioritizing their search for green brands. Brands poised to thrive are those that innovate to minimize their environmental impact while strengthening credibility by offering full transparency about their sustainability efforts.
Finding joy
In the face of constant waves of disruption, people are realizing that they don’t want to put their lives on hold any longer. While uncertainty persists, they’re no longer letting it stop them from living their best lives, whether it’s indulging in a massage or attending 2022’s Fifa World Cup. Instead, they’re finding ways to enjoy life’s little luxuries, even if it means making concessions or spending extra time searching for better deals.
People have also merged their online and offline lives into a continuum, with people wholeheartedly embracing the convenience of digital services and the unique magic of offline experiences. With India poised to become a trillion-dollar digital economy by 2026, we see rising searches in digital services like subscriptions and instant delivery. At the same time, people are going offline in bigger ways as compared with previous years: Live concerts and movies are back on the calendar, and luxury experiences like staycations are back on the menu.

Little Luxuries and Cheap Thrills
Sharukh is living his best life. The music composer ditched his studio and is now working mostly remote. The more he does online, he says, the more he can free up his life offline. This has allowed him to travel more, and prioritize an active lifestyle with his best friend Abhishek.
People care about value but they aren’t ready to give up the little luxuries in life. They’re searching for ways to fit expensive purchases into their budget. Some may wait to invest in more expensive purchases, but many others are diving right in.

+fifa world cup ticket+ is increasingly popular in India, with search interest rising by over 140%.

Rethink online and offline boundaries to meet your shoppers wherever they are.

Today’s customers are living — and shopping — in a channel-less world, making a frictionless omnichannel strategy more important than ever. Globally, search interest for in-store nearly tripled since the beginning of 2022. At the same time, 90% of APAC consumers expect retailers to sell their products online, and even those who purchase offline still refer to at least one digital channel for research.

MARKETING IMPLICATIONS 02

Use Performance Max campaigns to promote your products or services across all of Google’s advertising channels and inventory by creating one easy-to-manage campaign.
Aakaash BYJU was looking to drive incremental interest for their education centers at an efficient cost. It leveraged Local Campaigns, now integrated with Performance Max, for offline visits, to enable radius level-targeting, and to reach relevant customers.

It also developed relevant creatives for different formats, such as text, display, and video to enable more personalized targeting.
Brand Example

These campaigns drove a 400% increase in phone enquiries, and 13x higher engagements in the form of customers enquiring about directions to their centers for two months following the calls.
